Section I – Module A: Textual Conversations

20 marks

Attempt Question 1

Allow about 40 minutes for this section

Your answer will be assessed on how well you:

- demonstrate understanding of how composers are influenced by another text's concepts and values
 - evaluate the relationships between texts and contexts
 - organise, develop and express ideas using language appropriate to audience, purpose and form

Question 1 (20 marks)

It is not the resonances in form and ideas, but the dissonances between the texts, that illuminate the greatest insights in the textual conversation.

Evaluate how the textual conversation between John Donne's poetry and Margaret Edson's play W;t illuminates new insights.

In your response, make close reference to the pair of prescribed texts that you have studied in Module A.

Prescribed texts:

- Poetry
 - John Donne, John Donne: A Selection of His Poetry
The prescribed poems are:
 - * The Sunne Rising
 - * The Apparition
 - * A Valediction: forbidding mourning
 - * This is my playes last scene
 - * At the round earths imagin'd corners
 - * If poysonous mineralls
 - * Death be not proud
 - * Hymne to God my God, in my sicknesse
- Drama
 - Margaret Edson, W;t

Section II – Module B: Critical Study of Literature

20 marks

Attempt Question 2

Allow about 40 minutes for this section

Your answer will be assessed on how well you:

- demonstrate an informed understanding of the ideas expressed in the text
 - evaluate the text's distinctive language and stylistic qualities
 - organise, develop and express ideas using language appropriate to audience, purpose and form

Question 2 (20 marks)

With direct reference to the extract below, evaluate how Shakespeare's play King Henry IV, Part 1, relies on performativity in composition and concept.

Act II, scene iv- play extempore

- Henry V. Dost thou speak like a king? Do thou stand for me, and I'll play my father.
- Falstaff. Depose me? if thou dost it half so gravely, so majestically, both in word and matter, hang me up by the heels for a rabbit-sucker or a poulter's hare.
- Henry V. Well, here I am set.
- Falstaff. And here I stand: judge, my masters.
- Henry V. Now, Harry, whence come you?
- Falstaff. My noble lord, from Eastcheap.
- Henry V. The complaints I hear of thee are grievous.
- Falstaff. 'Sblood, my lord, they are false: nay, I'll tickle ye for a young prince, i' faith.
- Henry V. Swearest thou, ungracious boy? henceforth ne'er look on me. Thou art violently carried away from grace:
 there is a devil haunts thee in the likeness of an old fat man; a tun of man is thy companion. Why dost thou converse with that trunk of humours, that bolting-hutch of beastliness, that swollen parcel of dropsies, that huge bombard of sack, that stuffed cloak-bag of guts, that roasted Manningtree ox with the pudding in his belly, that reverend vice, that grey iniquity, that father ruffian, that vanity in years? Wherein is he good, but to taste sack and drink it? wherein neat and cleanly, but to carve a capon and eat it? wherein cunning, but in craft?1
 wherein crafty, but in villany? wherein villanous, but in all things? wherein worthy, but in nothing?

Section III – Module C: The Craft of Writing

20 marks

Attempt Question 3

Allow about 40 minutes for this section

Your answer will be assessed on how well you:

- craft language to address the demands of the question
 - use language appropriate to audience, purpose and context to deliberately shape meaning

Question 3 (20 marks)

But thanks to literature, to the consciousness it shapes, the desires and longings it inspires, and our disenchantment with reality when we return from the journey to a beautiful fantasy, civilization is now less cruel than when storytellers began to humanise life with their fables. We would be worse than we are without the good books we have read, more conformist, not as restless, more submissive, and the critical spirit, the engine of progress, would not even exist. We invent fictions in order to live somehow the many lives we would like to lead when we barely have one at our disposal.
