

2023

TRIAL HIGHER SCHOOL CERTIFICATE EXAMINATION

DO NOT REMOVE PAPER FROM EXAMINATION ROOM

--	--	--	--	--

Centre Number

--	--	--	--	--	--	--	--	--

Student Number

English Advanced

Paper 1 – Texts and Human Experiences

Morning Session
Monday, 31 July 2023

General Instructions

- Reading time – 10 minutes
- Working time – 1 hour and 30 minutes
- Write using black pen
- A Stimulus Booklet is provided with this examination
- Write your Centre Number and Student Number on the top of this page

Total marks:
40*Section I – 20 marks (page 2)

- Attempt Questions 1–5
- Allow about 45 minutes for this section

Section II – 20 marks (page 3)

- Attempt Question 6
- Allow about 45 minutes for this section

Disclaimer

These 'Trial' Higher School Certificate Examinations have been prepared by CSSA, a division of Catholic Schools NSW Limited. Every effort has been made to prepare these 'Trial' Higher School Certificate Examinations in accordance with the NSW Education Standards Authority (NESA) documents, Principles for Setting HSC Examinations in a Standards Referenced Framework and Principles for Developing Marking Guidelines Examinations in a Standards Referenced Framework. No guarantee or warranty is made or implied that the 'Trial' HSC Examination papers mirror in every respect the actual HSC Examination papers in any or all courses to be examined. These papers do not constitute 'advice' nor can they be construed as authoritative interpretations of NESA intentions. Catholic Schools NSW Limited accepts no liability for any reliance, use or purpose related to these 'Trial' HSC Examination papers. Advice on HSC examination issues is only to be obtained from the NESA.

Section I

20 marks

Attempt Questions 1–5

Allow about 45 minutes for this section

Answer the questions in a SEPARATE writing booklet. Extra writing booklets are available.

In your answers you will be assessed on how well you:

- demonstrate understanding of human experiences in texts
 - analyse, explain and assess the ways human experiences are represented in texts
-

Read Texts 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5 in the Stimulus Booklet carefully and then answer the questions.

Question 1 (3 marks)

Use Text 1 to answer this question.

'My way of seeing the world still seemed more of a virtue than a danger, which is how some dangers first appear.'

Explain how Text 1 demonstrates the paradoxes of human character.

Question 2 (4 marks)

Use Text 2 to answer this question.

How does Wakeling use language in her poem to communicate a sense of hope?

Question 3 (4 marks)

Use Text 3 to answer this question.

Analyse how a sense of tension is created in the extract.

Question 4 (3 marks)

Use Text 4 to answer this question.

Explain how the poet represents the nature of yearning.

Question 5 (6 marks)

Use Texts 4 and 5 for this question.

To what extent do Texts 4 and 5 reveal that the search for meaning is a complex process?

English Advanced

Paper 1 – Texts and Human Experiences

Stimulus Booklet for Section I and List of prescribed texts for Section II

	Pages
Section I
• Text 1 – Fiction extract	3
• Text 2 – Poem	4–5
• Text 3 – Nonfiction extract.....	6–7
• Text 4 – Poem	8–9
• Text 5 – Fiction extract	10–11
Section II
• List of prescribed texts	12–13

Copyright Notice

1. The copyright in this examination paper is that of Catholic Schools NSW Limited ACN 619 593 369 trading as CSSA - © 2023 Catholic Schools NSW.
2. This examination paper may only be used in accordance with the CSSA Trial HSC Examination Terms & Conditions (Terms). Those Terms should be read in full. The Terms contain a number of conditions including those relating to:
 - a. how this examination paper may be used for trial HSC examinations and/ or as a practice paper;
 - b. when copies may be made of this examination paper;
 - c. the security and storage requirements for this examination paper; and
 - d. guidelines for the conduct of trial HSC examinations.
3. Some of the material in this examination paper may have been copied and communicated to you in accordance with the statutory licence in section 113P of the Copyright Act 1968 (Cth) (Act). Any further reproduction or communication of this material by you may be the subject of copyright protection under the Act.
4. Do not remove this notice.

BLANK PAGE

Section I

Text 1 – Fiction extract

The Sympathizer

I am a spy, a sleeper, a spook, a man of two faces. Perhaps not surprisingly, I am also a man of two minds. I am not some misunderstood mutant from a comic book or a horror movie, although some have treated me as such. I am simply able to see any issue from both sides. Sometimes I flatter myself that this is a talent, and although it is admittedly one of a minor nature, it is perhaps also the sole talent I possess. At other times, when I reflect on how I cannot help but observe the world in such a fashion, I wonder if what I have should even be called talent. After all, a talent is something you use, not something that uses you. The talent you cannot not use, the talent that possesses you—that is a hazard, I must confess. But in the month when this confession begins, my way of seeing the world still seemed more of a virtue than a danger, which is how some dangers first appear.

The month in question was April, the cruelest month. It was the month in which a war that had run on for a very long time would lose its limbs, as is the way of wars. It was a month that meant everything to all the people in our small part of the world and nothing to most people in the rest of the world. It was a month that was both an end of a war and the beginning of ... well, “peace” is not the right word, is it, my dear Commandant? It was a month when I awaited the end behind the walls of a villa where I had lived for the previous five years, the villa’s walls glittering with broken brown glass and crowned with rusted barbed wire. I had my own room at the villa, much like I have my own room in your camp, Commandant. Of course, the proper term for my room is an “isolation cell”, and instead of a housekeeper who comes to clean every day, you have provided me with a baby-faced guard who does not clean at all. But I am not complaining. Privacy, not cleanliness, is my only prerequisite for writing this confession.

VIET THANH NGUYEN

Extract from The Sympathizer, 2015

Corsair

Reproduced with permission

Text 2 – Poem

and a tree

and a tree is a promise
safe-kept by a seed,
and a tree is a dance
that is swung by the breeze,

and a tree is an engine
spinning only on air
and water and light;
nothing lost, nothing spare,

and a tree is a king
who is topped with a crown, (and a tree never once loses touch with the ground)

and a tree is a home
with numberless doors,
and a tree is a world
for an ant to explore,

and a tree is a gift
(for a tree is a lung)
and a tree is a song
that is whispered and sung
by the bees and the birds,
and in rustles and creaks,
yes, a tree is a song
that is sung without words,

and a tree is a lesson
in the meaning of roots,
and how out of the mud
swell the sweetest of fruits,

Text 2 continues on page 5

Text 2 (continued)

and a tree is a story
of hope and repair,
or perhaps more a question;
a wish or a prayer,
for a tree (plus a tree)
shows us how we might share,

and when we should grow
and when we should sleep and what we could lose

and what we must keep.

KATE WAKELING
commissioned by the Poetry Society, 2022
Reproduced with permission

End of Text 2

Text 3 – Nonfiction extract

Little One

Chapter 1

It was the hottest day of summer, a Saturday in January. I sat cross-legged in my study, surrounded by piles of undergraduate textbooks, flicking through them, leaving light fingerprints of sweat on the pages. Having studied Science and Law for six years at university, I was about to embark on a PHD in genetics, and so was packing my old textbooks away. Seeing myself on each meticulously highlighted page, I sighed lightly, remembering all the time I'd spent, understanding, memorising, and ultimately regurgitating those passages, in cold, cavernous exam halls. The focus was now going to be on experiments not exams, data not grades, discovery not curriculum. Occasionally I stopped to read an extract, which brought back even more memories of lecturers, tutorials and classmates. It was a job well done, graduation with honours, all behind me now.

Mum looked into my room again. She had something on her mind. She hoped I wouldn't notice but it was impossible not to – she had poked her head in umpteen times that day. Having lived with my parents my whole life, I could tell when they were generally busy and when they were 'hovering'. The phrase 'helicopter parenting' could very well have been coined for them and especially for Mum. I knew she loved me, but at times it was at the point of suffocating her only child.

'Mama,' I said, 'What's up?'

Mum stopped and leaned against the door frame. She didn't respond for some time. 'Eh,' she finally said, 'nothing.'

'You keep walking past my door. A dozen times now. It's not nothing.'

She rubbed her hands together pensively. Eventually, she asked; 'Are you busy?'

I returned to flicking pages. 'Matters of world importance,' I replied.

Mum was silent. Failing to sense my sarcasm, she continued to stare at me. After a few moments, I looked back up and met her gaze. It was as if she were assessing me, sizing me up for something. As she gazed longer and deeper into my eyes than I thought anyone ever could, I felt lightheaded. There were generations in that look. Mum's stature was small, and her hands tiny, with purple veins protruding, her fingers beginning to turn in with arthritis. But at that moment she appeared like a giant.

Slowly, almost cautiously, I closed my book. 'Mama ...' I said, '*ela*¹, what is it?'

Finally, she spoke: 'Can you come to my room. I've something to tell you.'

Text 3 continues on page 7

Text 3 (continued)

My stomach tightened.

As I followed Mum down the carpeted hall, a memory cut across my brain. The last time she had insisted we talk in her room, was during my first year of university. My aunt in Greece had died suddenly.

...

‘Please Panagiotis, sit down’.

Mum always called me by my Greek name in moments of significance. It had been there in hospital during emergencies, in Church during baptisms and funerals, and at home during lectures for teenage misbehaviour. I didn’t mind it, but I knew what it meant. Even after all this time, those memories are with me, every day of every week.

Mum took up position on the edge of the bed, her bare feet resting on a thick blue rug. Looking down at her hands, she began.

PETER PAPATHANASIOU
Extract from Little One, 2019
Allen & Unwin Australia
Reproduced with permission

¹ Greek for ‘come’ or ‘come on’

End of Text 3

Text 4 – Poem

The novel

‘Only they don’t know / that this silence is what they yearn for.’
So there’s a man, or a woman, okay,
a person, and this person has a problem.
Not so much a problem as a yearning.
They live in a city but yearn for the quiet of the countryside. No, they yearn for the geometry, the voltage, the violent anonymity of the city. Or they yearn for the selfish, fat simplicity of their childhood. Okay, something more specific. They yearn for the silence that followed the call of the mother-owl out across the misted glade that morning in June. Or the silence of a blown-out filament like a ruined suspension bridge in a snow globe without snow.
That silence. That is what the person yearns for. Only they don’t know that this silence is what they yearn for.
Instead they cast around, throwing their yearning over everything like holy water, not knowing that the attainment of surrogate objects of desire only frustrates or aggravates their yearning, since the act of attainment itself eliminates an object from the category of desire, throwing it into severe relief, so that immediately it takes on a figurine aspect,
a repulsive resemblance of the silent moment that the person does not know they yearn for. Thus abandoned, the search continues, the world always ready with fresh and bright distractions.
And this person is just like us.
It could be us. Only it isn’t.

Text 4 continues on page 9

Text 4 (continued)

But you do know this person.
I can tell you that much.
Though of course, I needn't tell you.
You know exactly who I'm talking about.

JACK UNDERWOOD
in Granta – Vol. 150, 2020
Granta Publications
Reproduced with permission

End of Text 4

Text 5 – Fiction extract

The Ministry of Utmost Happiness

Where do old birds go to die?

She lived in the graveyard like a tree. At dawn she saw the crows off and welcomed the bats home. At dusk she did the opposite. Between shifts she conferred with the ghosts of vultures that loomed in her high branches. She felt the gentle grip of their talons like an ache in an amputated limb. She gathered they weren't altogether unhappy at having excused themselves and exited from the story. When she first moved in, she endured months of casual cruelty like a tree would – without flinching. She didn't turn to see which small boy had thrown a stone at her, didn't crane her neck to read the insults scratched into her bark. When people called her names – clown without a circus, queen without a palace – she let the hurt blow through her branches like a breeze and used the music of her rustling leaves as balm to ease the pain.

It was only after Ziauddin, the blind imam¹ who had once led the prayers in the Fatehpuri Masjid², befriended her and began to visit her that the neighbourhood decided it was time to leave her in peace.

One morning, while she read the newspaper aloud to him, the old imam, who clearly hadn't been listening, asked – affecting a casual air – “Is it true that even the Hindus among you are buried, not cremated?” Sensing trouble, she prevaricated. “True? Is what true? What is Truth?”

Unwilling to be deflected from his line of inquiry, the imam muttered a mechanical response. “Sach Khuda hai. Khuda hi Sach hai.” Truth is God. God is Truth. The sort of wisdom that was available on the backs of the painted trucks that roared down the highways. Then he narrowed his blindgreen eyes and asked in a slygreen whisper: “Tell me, you people, when you die, where do they bury you? Who bathes the bodies? Who says the prayers?”

Anjum said nothing for a long time. Then she leaned across and whispered back, untree-like, “Imam Sahib, when people speak of colour – red, blue, orange, when they describe the sky at sunset, or moonrise during Ramzaan³ – what goes through your mind?”

Having wounded each other thus, deeply, almost mortally, the two sat quietly side by side on someone's sunny grave, haemorrhaging. Eventually it was Anjum who broke the silence. “You tell me,” she said. “You're the Imam Sahib, not me. Where do old birds go to die? Do they fall on us like stones from the sky? Do we stumble on their bodies in the streets? Do you not think that the All-Seeing, Almighty One who put us on this Earth has made proper arrangements to take us away?”

Text 5 continues on page 11

Text 5 (continued)

That day the imam's visit ended earlier than usual. Anjum watched him leave, tap-tap-tapping his way through the graves, his seeing-eye cane making music as it encountered the empty booze bottles and discarded syringes that littered his path. She didn't stop him. She knew he'd be back. No matter how elaborate its charade, she recognised loneliness when she saw it. She sensed that in some strange tangential way, he needed her shade as much as she needed his. And she had learned from experience that Need was a warehouse that could accommodate a considerable amount of cruelty.

Even though Anjum's departure from the Khwabgah⁴ had been far from cordial, she knew that its dreams and its secrets were not hers alone to betray.

ARUNDHATI ROY

Extract from The Ministry of Utmost Happiness, 2017

Penguin Random House UK

Reproduced with permission

-
- ¹ an Islamic leadership position
² a 17th Century mosque in Delhi, India
³ Islamic holy month for Muslims
⁴ sleeping quarters; a dormitory

End of Text 5

Section II

The prescribed texts for Section II are:

- Prose Fiction
 - Anthony Doerr, All the Light We Cannot See
 - Amanda Lohrey, Vertigo
 - George Orwell, Nineteen Eighty-Four
 - Favel Parrett, Past the Shallows
- Poetry
 - Rosemary Dobson, Rosemary Dobson Collected
 - The prescribed poems are:
 - * Young Girl at a Window
 - * Over the Hill
 - * Summer's End
 - * The Conversation
 - * Cock Crow
 - * Amy Caroline
 - * Canberra Morning
 - Kenneth Slessor, Selected Poems
 - The prescribed poems are:
 - * Wild Grapes
 - * Gulliver
 - * Out of Time
 - * Vesper-Song of the Reverend Samuel Marsden
 - * William Street
 - * Beach Burial
- Drama
 - Jane Harrison, Rainbow's End, from Vivienne Cleven et al., Contemporary Indigenous Plays
 - Arthur Miller, The Crucible
- Shakespearean Drama
 - William Shakespeare, The Merchant of Venice

Section II prescribed texts continue on page 13

Section II prescribed texts (continued)

- Nonfiction
 - Tim Winton, The Boy Behind the Curtain

The prescribed chapters are:

 - * Havoc: A Life in Accidents
 - * Betsy
 - * Twice on Sundays
 - * The Wait and the Flow
 - * In the Shadow of the Hospital
 - * The Demon Shark
 - * Barefoot in the Temple of Art
 - Malala Yousafzai and Christina Lamb, I am Malala
- Film
 - Stephen Daldry, Billy Elliot
- Media
 - Ivan O'Mahoney, Go Back to Where You Came From

The prescribed episodes are:

 - * Series 1: Episodes 1, 2 and 3
 - and
 - * The Response
 - Lucy Walker, Waste Land

BLANK PAGE

BLANK PAGE

BLANK PAGE

English Advanced

Paper 1 – Texts and Human Experiences

Section I

20 marks

Question 1 (3 marks)

Outcomes Assessed: EA12-1, EA12-2, EA12-3, EA12-7

Targeted Performance Bands: 2-5

Criteria	Marks
• Explains effectively how Text 1 demonstrates the paradoxes of human character using aptly chosen textual evidence	3
• Explains how Text 1 demonstrates the paradoxes of human character using supporting textual evidence	2
• Provides some information about the text in response to the question	1

Answers could include reference to the following:

- The character conveys a sense of pride that his identity is multifaceted often contradictory, parts. ‘I am a spy, a sleeper, a spook, a man of two faces.’ ‘I am also a man of two minds.’ ‘I am simply able to see any issue from both sides.’ However, by the end of the first paragraph, he expresses a sense of caution that such multiplicity is dangerous or exposes one to danger.
- He explains that talent is, paradoxically, something positive but also problematic, ‘After all, a talent is something you use, not something that uses you,’ and ‘the talent you cannot not use, the talent that possesses you - that is a hazard.’
- Use of elliptical language or rhetoric raises questions and provokes the reader to doubt initial assumptions, creates a sense of an unreliable narrator ‘My way of seeing the world still seemed more of a virtue than a danger, which is how some dangers first appear.’
- Use of contrast to convey the fickleness or unpredictability of life – he moves from a life living in villas to ‘isolation cells’.

Disclaimer

The information contained in this document is intended for the professional assistance of only teaching staff. It does not constitute advice to students. Further it is not the intention of CSSA to provide specific marking outcomes for all possible CSSA Trial HSC Examination answers. Rather the purpose is to provide teachers with information so that they can better explore, understand and apply HSC marking requirements, as established by the NSW Education Standards Authority. No guarantee or warranty is made or implied with respect to the application or use of CSSA Trial HSC Examination Marking Guidelines in relation to any specific ‘Trial’ HSC Examination question or answer. The CSSA assumes no liability or responsibility for the accuracy, completeness or usefulness of any Marking Guidelines provided for the CSSA Trial HSC Examination papers.

Question 2 (4 marks)Outcomes Assessed: EA12-1, EA12-2, EA12-3, EA12-5, EA12-7*Targeted Performance Bands: 2-6

• Analyses effectively how Wakeling uses language to communicate a sense of hope, using well-chosen textual evidence	4
• Analyses how Wakeling uses language to communicate a sense of hope, using relevant textual evidence	3
• Explains how Wakeling uses language to communicate a sense of hope, using some textual evidence	2
• Describes aspects of the text	1

Answers could include reference to the following:

Wakeling employs lower case for the title “and a tree” to show that although the tree is a common entity or sight it is of great significance and embodies a great richness for the human experience:

- Each “sentence” or line of the poem begins in lower case to reinforce that significance or richness
- Each “sentence” or line of the poem starts in the middle: “and a tree...” representing its omnipresence
- The use of indefinite article “a” implies that it is not a specific tree but any tree – can apply to all people therefore communicating a sense of hope for all of us
- Use of metaphors to define and emphasise the importance of a tree: a tree is a promise, an engine, a king, a home, a world, a gift, a song, a lesson in the meaning of roots, a story. Two or three of these metaphors could be singled out for further analysis to further develop its effectiveness:
 - “a tree is a promise” signifies hope, as, “safe-kept by a seed” it ultimately reaches full growth
 - “a tree is a dance/that is swung by a breeze” conveys the promise of joy or happiness
 - “a tree is an engine/spinning only on air/ and water and light’ nothing lost, nothing spare”- from the very basics or elements needed to provide and sustain life the tree becomes a driving force – contemplation or awareness of this communicates a sense of hope
 - “and a tree is a king” ... “topped with a crown” which “never once/loses touch with the ground” - the knowledge of the tree perceived as being grounded is analogous for human perseverance in challenging times, significant in providing a sense of hope for the future
 - a gift – as well as its being freely given, it serves as a lung- that is, life-giving
 - “... a lesson/in the meaning of roots” - being rooted, as in being grounded can teach us all what is needed when times are challenging- to hold our ground
- Contradiction, paradox, or anomaly in “how out of the mud/swell the sweetest of fruits” - positive imagery-gives a sense of hope in the benefits of perseverance
- Wakeling uses positive imagery to convey a sense of hope through her use of the metaphor “a tree is a story/of hope and repair for a tree (plus a tree”)/ shows us how we might share” positives to convey how things could be; the rhyming of “repair” and “share” reinforces and imparts an affirmative statement
- Lineation: the poem ends with a single line which stands alone- not part of a stanza- “and what we must keep” emphasising the salient or dominant lessons to be learnt from the seemingly inconsequential tree
- Information in brackets/parenthesis adds extra information of a tree’s attributes

Disclaimer

The information contained in this document is intended for the professional assistance of only teaching staff. It does not constitute advice to students. Further it is not the intention of CSSA to provide specific marking outcomes for all possible CSSA Trial HSC Examination answers. Rather the purpose is to provide teachers with information so that they can better explore, understand and apply HSC marking requirements, as established by the NSW Education Standards Authority. No guarantee or warranty is made or implied with respect to the application or use of CSSA Trial HSC Examination Marking Guidelines in relation to any specific ‘Trial’ HSC Examination question or answer. The CSSA assumes no liability or responsibility for the accuracy, completeness or usefulness of any Marking Guidelines provided for the CSSA Trial HSC Examination papers.

Question 3 (4 marks)Outcomes Assessed: EA12-1, EA12-2, EA12-3, EA12-5, EA12-7Targeted Performance Bands: 2-6

Criteria	Marks
• Analyses effectively using well-chosen supporting evidence how a sense of tension is created in the extract	4
• Analyses using relevant supporting evidence how a sense of tension is created in the extract	3
• Explains how a sense of tension is created in the extract using some supporting evidence	2
• Describes aspects of the text	1

Answers could include reference to the following:

- Use of pathetic fallacy, 'It was the hottest day of summer' to convey a sense of uncomfortableness.
- Tension is created between the speaker and his mother as he ignores her desire to communicate, he feels her presence as an intrusion.
- The tension between the revealed and the not yet revealed creates a sense of anticipation.
- The references to past revelations regarding death creates a sense of foreboding as he misinterprets her intentions to connect.
- His patronising description of her care as 'helicopter parenting' and his dismissive use of sarcasm in response to her question, 'Are you busy?' I returned to flicking pages. 'Matters of world importance.'
- Descriptions of body language ...
- The mother's use of his full name conveys her desire to regain some power or control.
- The time lapse between the mother's settling herself and disclosure; she has the knowledge about something potentially momentous, he must wait: "Mum took up position on the edge of the bed, her bare feet resting on a thick blue rug. Looking down at her hands, she began."

Disclaimer

The information contained in this document is intended for the professional assistance of only teaching staff. It does not constitute advice to students. Further it is not the intention of CSSA to provide specific marking outcomes for all possible CSSA Trial HSC Examination answers. Rather the purpose is to provide teachers with information so that they can better explore, understand and apply HSC marking requirements, as established by the NSW Education Standards Authority. No guarantee or warranty is made or implied with respect to the application or use of CSSA Trial HSC Examination Marking Guidelines in relation to any specific 'Trial' HSC Examination question or answer. The CSSA assumes no liability or responsibility for the accuracy, completeness or usefulness of any Marking Guidelines provided for the CSSA Trial HSC Examination papers.

Question 4 (3 marks)Outcomes Assessed: EA12-1, EA12-2, EA12-3, EA12-5, EA12-7Targeted Performance Bands: 2-5

Criteria	Marks
• Explains effectively how the poet represents the nature of yearning, using well-chosen textual evidence	3
• Explains how the poet represents the nature of yearning, using relevant textual evidence	2
• Attempts to explain the nature of yearning in the text	1

Answers could include reference to the following:

- The image of maths and science shows significance across multiple disciplines of life “geometry and voltage”
- Image of the ephemeral/ transient – misted glade/ morning - suggests significance of the time and place
- Paradoxical images – snow globe without snow, thus abandoned the search continues – shows the significance of absence and its impact.
- Spiritual imagery evoked in the simile “like holy water” – shows deeper levels of significance and conveys how we cover our yearning with “objects of desire”
- Visual imagery evokes nostalgia for past phases of life – “selfish, fat, simplicity of their childhood”
- Auditory imagery – “calling to us/ silence” – significant at all times/ stages.
- Juxtaposition and conjunction in “They live in a city but yearn for the quiet...”
- Imagery is presented in a conversational, speculative, hypothetical, inclusive style.
- Repetition of “They yearn” and presents multiple possibilities and avenues for yearning
- Cumulative style in “geometry, the voltage, the violent anonymity of the city” evokes the city’s harshness, in contrast with the “the quiet” and “the silence.”
- Auditory and naturalistic imagery “the silence that followed the call of the mother-owl” reflects the yearning for nature.
- Visual imagery created by the simile “like a ruined suspension bridge” ...
- Cumulative sentence beginning with the adverb “Instead they cast around,” coupled with the use of present tense verbs “frustrates” and “aggravates” comments upon the emotional turmoil of obtaining what is yearned for.
- Reflection imagery evoked in “severe relief... a repulsive resemblance.”
- Inclusive language and use of first and second person invites the reader to reflect upon their own experiences of yearning in “this person is just like us. It could be us... But you do know this person.”

Disclaimer

The information contained in this document is intended for the professional assistance of only teaching staff. It does not constitute advice to students. Further it is not the intention of CSSA to provide specific marking outcomes for all possible CSSA Trial HSC Examination answers. Rather the purpose is to provide teachers with information so that they can better explore, understand and apply HSC marking requirements, as established by the NSW Education Standards Authority. No guarantee or warranty is made or implied with respect to the application or use of CSSA Trial HSC Examination Marking Guidelines in relation to any specific ‘Trial’ HSC Examination question or answer. The CSSA assumes no liability or responsibility for the accuracy, completeness or usefulness of any Marking Guidelines provided for the CSSA Trial HSC Examination papers.

Question 5 (6 marks)Outcomes Assessed: EA12-2, EA12-3, EA12-5, EA12-6, EA12-7, EA12-8Targeted Performance Bands: 3-6

Criteria	Marks
• Evaluates insightfully how both texts reveal that the search for meaning is a complex process using detailed, well-selected supporting evidence from both texts	6
• Evaluates how both texts reveal that the search for meaning is a complex process using well-chosen supporting evidence from both texts	4-5
• Describes how both texts reveal that the search for meaning is a complex process with some supporting evidence	2-3
• Provides some relevant information about the text(s)	1

Answers could include reference to the following:

Both texts reveal to a great extent, that the search for meaning is a complex process.

- The poem demonstrates individuals' endless search for meaning through yearning or desire for something they do not have. Yet when the desired goal or object is achieved, it no longer satisfies, and a new one is sought: "they live in a city but yearn for the quiet of the countryside. No, they yearn for the geometry, the voltage, the violent anonymity of the city."
- People are never happy and do not even know what they yearn for - there is this constant emptiness: "They yearn for the silence ... that silence like a ruined suspension bridge in a snow globe without snow. That silence. That is what the person yearns for. Only they don't know that this silence is what they yearn for." The simile reinforces the futile search for something that may not even exist.
- By comparison, the fiction extract focuses on loneliness, the loneliness of the outcast, the misunderstood, or 'other': "She lived in the graveyard like a tree." The simile de-personalises the character, Anjun, which emphasises the way she is able to endure, "when she first moved in, months of casual cruelty."
- When she finds a friend in the blind imam, the bullying stops but the search for meaning continues when he shows ignorance of her culture in his question to her, "Is it true that even the Hindus among you are buried, not cremated." The question repositions her as 'other' in "even the Hindus among you ... and "you people, when you die..."
- The imam is not listening to her when she reads aloud to him, and mutters "a mechanical response" to her question about the meaning or definition of Truth and persists in his questions, which clearly show his ignorance and lack of empathy, even though he is a holy man.
- Her eventual response to him, significantly described as "untree-like" signifies her departure from her former wooden façade for self-protection, "Imam Sahib, when people speak of colour- red, blue, orange, when they describe the sky at sunset, or moonrise during Ramzaan – what goes through your mind?" The search for meaning by each is graphically demonstrated in the metaphor: "Having wounded each other thus, deeply, almost mortally, the two sat quietly side by side on someone's sunny grave, haemorrhaging." The blood and haemorrhaging imagery represent the deep hurt each has inflicted on the other in their futile efforts to establish meaning.

Disclaimer

The information contained in this document is intended for the professional assistance of only teaching staff. It does not constitute advice to students. Further it is not the intention of CSSA to provide specific marking outcomes for all possible CSSA Trial HSC Examination answers. Rather the purpose is to provide teachers with information so that they can better explore, understand and apply HSC marking requirements, as established by the NSW Education Standards Authority. No guarantee or warranty is made or implied with respect to the application or use of CSSA Trial HSC Examination Marking Guidelines in relation to any specific 'Trial' HSC Examination question or answer. The CSSA assumes no liability or responsibility for the accuracy, completeness or usefulness of any Marking Guidelines provided for the CSSA Trial HSC Examination papers.

- The loneliness in each, “no matter how elaborate its charade” translates to “Need” metaphorically depicted as “a warehouse that could accommodate a considerable amount of cruelty.” Thus, despite their hopeless attempts to establish meaning, Anjun knows he will be back, and they will continue their strange ‘friendship’ as she sensed ... he needed her shade as much as she needed his.” The tree metaphor once more significant in the extract in depicting that the search for meaning, and understanding, is a complex process.

Disclaimer

The information contained in this document is intended for the professional assistance of only teaching staff. It does not constitute advice to students. Further it is not the intention of CSSA to provide specific marking outcomes for all possible CSSA Trial HSC Examination answers. Rather the purpose is to provide teachers with information so that they can better explore, understand and apply HSC marking requirements, as established by the NSW Education Standards Authority. No guarantee or warranty is made or implied with respect to the application or use of CSSA Trial HSC Examination Marking Guidelines in relation to any specific ‘Trial’ HSC Examination question or answer. The CSSA assumes no liability or responsibility for the accuracy, completeness or usefulness of any Marking Guidelines provided for the CSSA Trial HSC Examination papers.

Section II

20 marks

Question 6 (20 marks)

Outcomes Assessed: EA12-1, EA12-3, EA12-5, EA12-7, EA12-8

Targeted Performance Bands: 2-6

Criteria	Marks
• Evaluates skilfully, the extent to which the prescribed text demonstrates the relationship between desire and human experience • Presents an insightful response with detailed analysis supported by well-chosen textual references from the prescribed text • Writes a coherent and sustained response using language appropriate to audience, purpose and context	17-20
• Evaluates effectively the extent to which the prescribed text demonstrates the relationship between desire and human experience • Presents a thoughtful response with analysis supported by textual references from the prescribed text • Writes an organised response using language appropriate to audience, purpose and context	13-16
• Explains how the prescribed text demonstrates the relationship between desire and human experience • Presents a response supported by some textual references from the prescribed text • Writes a response using variable control of language appropriate to audience, purpose and context	9-12
• Expresses limited understanding of the relationship between desire and human experience in the prescribed text • Describes aspects of the prescribed text • Writes a limited response with minimal control of language	5-8
• Refers to the prescribed text in an elementary way • Attempts to compose a response	1-4

Disclaimer

The information contained in this document is intended for the professional assistance of only teaching staff. It does not constitute advice to students. Further it is not the intention of CSSA to provide specific marking outcomes for all possible CSSA Trial HSC Examination answers. Rather the purpose is to provide teachers with information so that they can better explore, understand and apply HSC marking requirements, as established by the NSW Education Standards Authority. No guarantee or warranty is made or implied with respect to the application or use of CSSA Trial HSC Examination Marking Guidelines in relation to any specific 'Trial' HSC Examination question or answer. The CSSA assumes no liability or responsibility for the accuracy, completeness or usefulness of any Marking Guidelines provided for the CSSA Trial HSC Examination papers.

BLANK PAGE

Copyright Notice

1. The copyright in this examination paper is that of Catholic Schools NSW Limited ACN 619 593 369 trading as CSSA - © 2023 Catholic Schools NSW.
2. This examination paper may only be used in accordance with the CSSA Trial HSC Examination Terms & Conditions (Terms). Those Terms should be read in full. The Terms contain a number of conditions including those relating to:
 - a. how this examination paper may be used for trial HSC examinations and/ or as a practice paper;
 - b. when copies may be made of this examination paper;
 - c. the security and storage requirements for this examination paper; and
 - d. guidelines for the conduct of trial HSC examinations.
3. Some of the material in this examination paper may have been copied and communicated to you in accordance with the statutory licence in section 113P of the Copyright Act 1968 (Cth) (Act). Any further reproduction or communication of this material by you may be the subject of copyright protection under the Act.
4. Do not remove this notice.

Disclaimer

The information contained in this document is intended for the professional assistance of only teaching staff. It does not constitute advice to students. Further it is not the intention of CSSA to provide specific marking outcomes for all possible CSSA Trial HSC Examination answers. Rather the purpose is to provide teachers with information so that they can better explore, understand and apply HSC marking requirements, as established by the NSW Education Standards Authority. No guarantee or warranty is made or implied with respect to the application or use of CSSA Trial HSC Examination Marking Guidelines in relation to any specific 'Trial' HSC Examination question or answer. The CSSA assumes no liability or responsibility for the accuracy, completeness or usefulness of any Marking Guidelines provided for the CSSA Trial HSC Examination papers.

Section II

20 marks

Attempt Question 6

Allow about 45 minutes for this section

Answer the question in a SEPARATE writing booklet. Extra writing booklets are available.

Your answer will be assessed on how well you:

- demonstrate understanding of human experiences in texts
 - analyse, explain and assess the ways human experiences are represented in texts
 - organise, develop and express ideas using language appropriate to audience, purpose and context
-

Question 6 (20 marks)

To what extent has your prescribed text informed your judgement about the relationship between desire and human experience?

The prescribed texts are listed on pages 12–13 of the Stimulus Booklet.

End of Examination

EXAMINERS

Marilyn Pretorius (Convenor)
Peter Damalas
Anthony George
Debbie Hanrahan
Helen McCarthy
Kate O'Connor
Rachel Palgan
Deborah Quigley
Georgina Tsiftis
Jessica Whitney

SCEGGS Darlinghurst, Darlinghurst
Marcellin Catholic College, Randwick
St Vincent's College, Potts Point
Marist College Eastwood, Eastwood
St Ursula's College, Kingsgrove
SCEGGS Darlinghurst, Darlinghurst
Mount St Benedict College, Pennant Hills
St Vincent's College, Potts Point
Trinity Catholic College, Auburn | Regents Park
Marist College Eastwood, Eastwood

Additional Disclaimer

Users of CSSA Trial HSC Examinations are advised that due to changing NESA examination policies, it cannot be assumed that CSSA Trial HSC Examinations and NESA Examinations will, from year to year, always fully align with respect to either or both the format and content of examination questions. Candidates for HSC examinations and their teachers should always anticipate a dynamic assessment environment.

Copyright Notice

1. The copyright in this examination paper is that of Catholic Schools NSW Limited ACN 619 593 369 trading as CSSA - © 2023 Catholic Schools NSW.
2. This examination paper may only be used in accordance with the CSSA Trial HSC Examination Terms & Conditions (Terms). Those Terms should be read in full. The Terms contain a number of conditions including those relating to:
 - a. how this examination paper may be used for trial HSC examinations and/ or as a practice paper;
 - b. when copies may be made of this examination paper;
 - c. the security and storage requirements for this examination paper; and
 - d. guidelines for the conduct of trial HSC examinations.
3. Some of the material in this examination paper may have been copied and communicated to you in accordance with the statutory licence in section 113P of the Copyright Act 1968 (Cth) (Act). Any further reproduction or communication of this material by you may be the subject of copyright protection under the Act.
4. Do not remove this notice.